REPORT

The first session of the DroidCraft Bootcamp introduced participants to Jetpack Compose, Android's modern UI toolkit. The session began with a brief overview of the evolution of Android UI development, highlighting the transition from XML-based layouts to Compose's declarative, Kotlin-driven approach. Participants were introduced to the key benefits of Jetpack Compose, including faster development, improved UI readability, and the flexibility to create dynamic, responsive interfaces.

A live coding demonstration followed, where attendees learned to build a simple UI using core composables like Text, Button, and Column. The instructor showcased real-time UI updates through hot reloading, emphasizing how Compose simplifies the development process. Attendees were guided through structuring a basic app layout while exploring essential concepts like composable functions and state management.
